

The relaxing which is now announced worldwide leads to a new wave of coronavirus infections as well as to many corona deaths.

Excerpt from the 742nd contact of the 13th of June, 2020

Ptaah What I have to say is the following: in regard to the rampantly spreading corona disease, we have carried out different looks into the future for the coming months, and with that we have recognised something frightening, about which I have still something to explain, which is also of significance and importance for all of you. As I already explained three weeks ago, you shall continue to adhere to the security measures in the form that I have recommended, because the coming months require this in particular. Therefore you all – whereby I mean all FIGU members, Core Group members and passive members, friends of FIGU and all those persons worldwide who are outside of FIGU but who read our advice on our website and willingly follow it – shall, in the coming months, not deviate from the security measures mentioned by us. On one hand, this especially concerns the wearing of suitable protective masks of the FFP2 form, which have to cover the breathing organ and the mouth, when one cannot avoid coming into close proximity with persons not from one's own house. On the other hand, the obligation shall be heeded that absolutely a distance of at least 2 metres is kept from persons who are not part of one's household and a protective mask worn; indeed especially when conversations are carried out.

Billy That is what you already recommended that we do and is that which we also comply with, namely for as long as you recommend it for us. But that you now present your advice regarding this yet again – that must have a special reason, I think. If you...

Ptaah ... But now, Eduard, regardless of what we recently said – that we did not want to talk further about the rampantly spreading corona disease – I want to again conclusively mention something which, in my opinion, is necessary to explain. After that it shall then be the case that we really will not occupy ourselves anymore with this sorrowful topic, because, as we again and again ascertain, such an arrogance and low intelligence prevails in regard to intellect and rationality with the majority of the state leaders and municipal administrators and likewise with the majority of the supposed medical experts that a real, appropriate, responsible action cannot come about. The same applies for the majority of all the populations of all the countries worldwide, as the irresponsible demonstrations as well as the reckless general security-opposing behaviour show. This can be seen especially from the non-adherence to the wearing of masks and keeping a distance, as well as from travel activity and the holiday behaviour, the carefree celebrations with excessive alcohol consumption as well as the unrestrained disgraceful prostitution.

Billy Ok. I can understand you being alarmed, which is why it is also probably correct, from this viewpoint, when you say something yet again: indeed what you think is necessary.

Ptaah The meaning of my comment is this: ... But what I now have to explain relates to the fact that the relaxation of the curfews and the rescinding of the duty of wearing protective masks – which has been announced for weeks, because of the state leaders, municipal officials, virologists and other supporters of the relaxation – will lead to a new wave of coronavirus infections worldwide as well as to many corona deaths. However, as I already explained earlier, it is not a second wave, as is erroneously assumed, rather it is a further escalation of the ever-continuing outbreak and emergence of the rampantly spreading corona disease. And this happens as a consequence of the inexcusable low intelligence of the state leaders and municipal officials who, in an irresponsible form propagate and allow that the also only halfway good and effective rules and precautions for the security of human beings are again rescinded. It is also inexcusable that the populations do not have everything explained to them regarding the rampantly spreading corona disease via the public information organs, according to the best knowledge and understanding, such as about the importance of how the coronavirus most of all spreads via expiration droplets, that is to say, aerosols, and causes an infection, and namely, as a rule, through being coughed at or body contact. In this form the virus can very quickly spread and indeed especially when persons get together in groups or masses. With such groupings, usually many kinds of objects are also dangerously made use of, on the surfaces of which deposits of saliva, nasal mucus, grease and hand sweat, and so forth, are left, and then they are contaminated with coronavirus, if the deposits stem from human beings who are infected with the coronavirus. Via these deposits on the surfaces of such objects the coronavirus is then further spread; consequently, new infections arise from that, when contacts occur with the corona pathogens.

If it is the case that such deposits occur on the surfaces of objects, then the coronavirus, as our research shows, is able to survive up to 3 days and even up to 96 hours – depending on the material and surface of the objects and the environment, weather and temperature – before it becomes weak, loses its activity and becomes ineffective. Viruses cannot die off, because they are not life forms. Rather they are organic structures that cannot be killed. The fact that the intensity in regard to infectiousness already weakens after a few hours and becomes ever weaker, changes nothing in terms of the danger of an infectious activity, because this carries on also with a continued weakening of the virus.

The coronavirus is extremely dangerous and does not allow any neglect, because it is extremely contagious where through many human beings also die of infections, and indeed also when most who become ill with it are not seriously affected, but recover again. Many show only mild and flu-like symptoms, while others show no kinds of signs of an infection at all, however are nonetheless infected by the virus and can also pass on the rampantly spreading disease under some circumstances.

With that which can be left behind by the virus in the human organism – be it after a recovery or during an infectious state in which no infection can be detected – the virus can form and maintain undetectable long-term damage, which in the course of time can develop into long lasting and new kinds of diseases and illnesses, also diverse kinds of cancer as well as body and genital deformations, the cause of which will not be able to be determined.

As a rule, every human being who is infected by the coronavirus is a carrier of the rampantly spreading disease, although, as a consequence of the difference between the immune systems of the male and female genders, it especially encroaches on that of the male gender. This is a factor which is still completely unknown by the terrestrial doctors and corresponding scientists, as is the fact, which I already mentioned in an earlier conversation, that immunity differences prevail between different peoples.

Aside from the difference between the immune systems of the male and female genders, as well as between different peoples, also the energy and power level of the immune system, that is to say, the strength of its condition, and thereby also its ability to convalesce, is important. These values determine whether there is a possibility of infection or not, and they also determine its course and the rehabilitation or the failure of the organism. The coronavirus especially takes hold on immune systems that are already compromised and are weakened in terms of energy, and thereby it takes hold in human beings who in some form are more or less impaired in their health and for that reason form an especially acute attack surface and possibility for infection for the coronavirus. Such human beings are therefore especially vulnerable and have a distinctly higher risk than persons who are unencumbered by health problems; consequently they also become seriously sick and, under some circumstances, die. However, in this case it is erroneous to assume that only older human beings or those with pre-existing conditions or an immunity weakness would be affected by coronavirus, because basically also children can become infected by the virus and even die of it, as I already mentioned multiple times in conversations. As well as that, also human beings of every age can be affected due to various reasons; for example, as a consequence of exhaustion, lack of vitamins, minerals and trace elements. Also the reduced ability to self-regulate as well as actual disorders of the psyche and anxiety lead to susceptibility to the coronavirus, as does an iron deficiency anaemia as a consequence of vegetarianism and veganism, because meat products are avoided, especially dark meat, black pudding, beef fillet and liver, whereby their iron is better absorbed by the body than the iron in iron-containing vegetables.

Care in regard to the danger of infection is called for with long stays in closed rooms, if infected persons stay in there under some circumstances. Also dealing with persons outdoors can mean a danger of infection if the necessary maintenance of a distance of 2 metres and, under some circumstances, the necessity of wearing a protective mask are not adhered to. Also, with recreational sports of every kind, sizeable distances to other persons shall be maintained.

Already a distance of at least 1.5 metres can reduce the risk of contagion, although, however, also at this distance, depending on the case, contagion via infected persons is possible; consequently a good safety distance of 2 metres is more reliable. However, this distance is not only important indoors, rather also outdoors, if there is not a sure certainty that persons who are in one's vicinity are not infected. Outdoors the wind direction is also to consider, because via the wind the expiration droplets, that is to say, the aerosols, are carried up to 10 or 15 or more metres and can therefore also be breathed in at quite a distance by other human beings, who become infected. However, when respiratory-protection-masks are also worn outdoors or in airy rooms, an infection can be prevented to a great extent or completely.

As I already explained earlier, air conditioners as well as air circulation systems can also distribute the virus particles across quite a distance, and also diverse open foods, that is to say, cut foods, can be a breeding ground for the virus, especially cut meat, through which the virus can be spread further.

When masks are worn, then the aerosols are, as a rule, mostly not distributed far away, but with wind they are more distributed, whereby also the risk of infection increases; consequently it also therefore does not then decrease when protective masks are worn.

Also a regular hand washing and body hygiene count as personal protective measures, as I already explained before, just as the wearing of suitable gloves can be very beneficial where appropriate.

If typical corona symptoms arise, then a corona test and a self-imposed house arrest should occur, especially when more serious conditions, such as difficulty breathing, and so forth, occur. At the beginning of the infection, the virus multiplies in the oropharynx and nasopharynx, and when a swab of it is made and is investigated in the laboratory, by searching for and finding the genetic material of the virus in the specimen, then a sure result is produced, because such a test, as a rule, shows a high degree of accuracy in regard to the new coronavirus. Also antibody tests are necessary in order to be able to prove whether a human being had already been infected by the rampantly spreading corona disease or not, as well as whether he/she has developed a certain immunity against the virus or not, although this can however be just short-term but also long-term, depending on the case, whereby one cannot expect any so-called herd immunity. Also, evidence of antibodies does not mean a final healing or immunity, because the antibodies of this virus can quickly diminish again, become weaker and, under some circumstances, completely dissolve again.

Human beings who are struck by the coronavirus sometimes feel unwell and worn out while others do not feel any symptoms, however nonetheless can infect other persons, in which case also with these persons antibodies are evident in their blood after approximately 10 days. However, a certain group of human beings can accordingly remain infectious for an undetermined time while others remain without infection.

A coronavirus infection produces flu-like symptoms when it acutely breaks out, for which reason a cold or influenza is erroneously assumed, but it can bring baleful sequelae with it. Approximately half of infected human beings succumb to coughing, others to severe or less severe bouts of fever or also to sniffles, whereby however the majority of infected human beings survive the coronavirus rampantly spreading disease well, and can recover without great complications. However, that does not mean or guarantee that there are not diverse forms of long-term damage which last for a life time and can bring unexpected terrible things with them, as well as corona-impulse-deposits which are still unknown to terrestrial medical science, are not ascertainable and remain active, and at any time can push up their permanent activity again and push the rampantly spreading disease on. With that, however, it is not a reactivation of the infection, rather it is the corona infection's acute continued-existence-of-the-impulse which is still not known to terrestrial medical science and is not detectable.

If a contact with an infected person has occurred, then a corona test should immediately be done and one should voluntarily isolate oneself from other human beings for at least 30 days, because the incubation time, that is to say, the time between the infection and the outbreak of the rampantly spreading disease, can last longer under some circumstances than is generally assumed by the experts as a result of unknowledge. Indeed the virus can already be spread further shortly after an infection, as already explained, but the incubation time of the virus can last much longer before the first symptoms arise.

That is now that which I still had to say regarding the rampantly spreading corona disease, but there is still something else that belongs to that. While the state leaders and municipal officials determine and act in such low intelligence and therethrough present a bad and death-bringing model for the populations, the majority of the populations adopt these wrong determinations and modes of behaviour equally for themselves, wherethrough now the coming terrible state of affairs can no longer be held back. And from that, also those countries and populations will be affected which, as a consequence of the half-way maintaining of the safety precautions, have largely got off lightly, such as Switzerland and Germany. However, that will indeed change soon, because the terribleness will take its course and will only stop when hard, sweeping measures are seized and strictly adhered to again.

The infections and deaths in regard to the still raging rampantly spreading corona disease will continue on world-wide unrestrained, and will now also quickly increase again and thereby continue the still not ended and ongoing first outbreak of the rampantly spreading disease. Also countries in which everything has normalised and settled somewhat regarding the rampantly spreading disease will be newly afflicted by it, whereby the international trade and transport of wares contributes as much to that as does the irrational and irresponsible tourism and the holiday-irrationality of the Earth human beings. Thereby one must also consider that also the nonsensical fact of the irresponsible rescinding and ending of the safety precautions contributes to that.

After the approaching culmination point of the rampantly spreading corona disease, which now proceeds and then will no doubt also fulfil itself, a second wave will follow, which is the rule with this or other rampantly spreading diseases, as I already said. The exact time of it cannot be determined yet, however it can break out already by autumn or winter or even only next year.

Our earlier calculations, that by the middle of the year there would be 8 million infections due to the virus, has changed already for a second time, and namely due the low intelligence and irrationality of the responsible ones of state and of municipalities, who now almost worldwide largely rescind – and likewise declare as ended – the protection rules in regard to curfews and the wearing of protective masks as well as other rules. This does not only correspond to an inconsiderateness, low intelligence and unlogic, rather to an absolute irresponsibility which yet again will demand hundreds of thousands of infections, which now until the end of the month of June will increase to high above 10 million. Correspondingly the corona deaths will also massively increase worldwide, as will infections of newly born babies and children, because the embryo is already infected in the womb. Also, infections will increasingly arise, especially with children, without that being able to be medically-virologically proven, while, however, an infection will nonetheless be able to be spread, namely already seconds after a new infection.
